

SPOTLIGHT on SPORT: FUN and GAMES OR SERIOUS BUSINESS ?

Sports are woven into the fabric of our society – education, health, business, politics and our national identity. Experience in sport affects who a person becomes and what a person will do in life. Among the experts exploring the influence sport plays within our society in this series are an economist, a senator, Olympians, and a journalist. Good or bad, regardless of our individual perceived involvement, the business of sports plays a significant role in everyone’s life.

DATE	SPEAKER	TITLE
January 12	Stephen Brunt, Journalist	Sports in the Times of Covid: Risks, Rewards, and the Bottom Line
January 19	The Honourable Senator Marty Deacon	Leadership and Learning: From Playground to Podium
January 26	Olympian Dick Pound	Teaching the Cats to March: The Olympic Movement and the World Anti-Doping Agency
February 2	Dr. Ken Jackson	Economics and Equity in Youth Sports
February 9	Dr. Tim Elcombe	Sportplexity: A Great Invention “Riddled With Tensions and Irresolvable Dilemmas”
February 16	Dr. Alanna Harman	Have We Really Come a Long Way? Examining Female Athlete Representation in the Media
February 23	Dr. Stephen Wenn	Decisions, Decisions: Four IOC Presidents and Their Collective Embrace of Olympic Commercialism
March 2	Olympian Cheryl Pounder	Growing for Gold: Getting to Know the Leader Within

FOR DETAILED INFORMATION about each lecture and the presenter go to:

<https://tal-kw.ca/lecture-series/spotlight-on-sports/>